You may know a walk-in. You may even be one. They are high-minded entities permitted to take over the bodies of human beings who wish to depart this life. Their mission is to lead us into an astonishing new age. They are walk-ins, and there are tens of thousands of them on this planet.

My mother turned me on to Ruth Montgomery's books while I was a teenager. In each successive book, she takes on another, seemingly more esoteric paranormal subject. We've all heard about reincarnation, but I had never heard of Walk-Ins until I read Strangers Among Us. I got goosebumps when I first read about these enlightened beings who are allowed to take over the body of a person who desires to depart their life. The Walk-In bypasses the childhood and growing up years, by entering an adult body (with permission of course) and rapidly begins to help others help themselves. Montgomery claims that renowned leaders such as Ghandi, Lincoln and Benjamin Franklin were Walk-Ins, as are tens of thousands of nonfamous people working quietly to lead us into a New Age.

I Was a Stranger. A man of peace. A vengeful dictator. A priceless gift from America. Held 1,431 days in horrendous conditions, Feliberto Pereira endured for the day freedom would arrive -- a morning flight from Cuba to Miami, part of the largest airborne rescue of its kind in U.S. history. On his journey to freedom, hope replaced despair, and for thousands of people this man would meet, life would never be the same. The inspiring story of a modern Good Samaritan.
