In "Horses Never Lie," acclaimed horse trainer Mark Rashid breaks new ground by challenging the longstanding belief that a person must become the "alpha leader" in order to work with horses. Instead, "Horses Never Lie" teaches you how to become a "passive leader"-a reflection of the kind of horse other members of a herd choose to be around and to follow. It's a must read for all horse owners who care about their horses and the kind of relationship they have with them.

As he did in "Considering the Horse" and "A Good Horse Is Never a Bad Color," Rashid writes about his experiences with real horses, always featuring his sense of humor and an overriding compassion for the horse. His instructive anecdotes reach back to when he was a youngster under the mentorship of the "old man," and continue to his experiences today as a horse trainer and a popular clinician who has traveled the world to teach his remarkably effective methods to enthusiastic horse owners.

Mark Rashid, author of "Considering the Horse" and "A Good Horse Is Never a Bad Color," has worked with horses since he was ten years old. His articles on solving problems from the horse's point of view have been published in "Western Horseman" and "Western Horse." He lives near Estes Park, Colorado. "At $16.00 I think this paperback book might save you a lot of money on quirts, bits, and spurs." -- Horse Previews Magazine, June, 2000

The Heart of Leadership. In the new and revised edition of The Heart of Leadership: 12 Practices of Courageous Leaders, author Robert E. Staub lays out an articulate inquiry into, and explanation of, critically essential aspects of effective business leadership. These include competency, intimacy, integrity and passion. Articulate, educative, ardent and inspiring, Staub offers a thoroughly reader friendly and practical presentation that is very highly recommended for anyone charged with an entrepreneurial or business management responsibility, from the smallest company to the largest international corporation. Leading requires that we offer strategic guidance by understanding and communicating the purpose for which the team or company stands. It also requires the courage to respectfully confront anyone, including ourselves, when actions do not align with that purpose. Leaders can transform companies by focusing on the critical link between results and relationships. Wholehearted leadership can transform a good company into a great one.
